Fabulous Fashion: From Dior's New Look to Now

Through March 3

Explore the many methods used to create spectacular fashion. From the rigorous standards of haute couture to the globalization of ready-to-wear, see how designers have used color and pattern, shape and volume, draping, metallics, and embellishments to continually reinvent the art form.

Final Fridays: Werk It!

Friday, January 25, 5:00–8:45 p.m.

Celebrate the art of the catwalk with our first voguing competition. Legendary DJ MikeQ provides the soundtrack while members from POSSE Project (Promoting Openness through Safer Sex Education) at CHOP sashay down the runway wearing self-designed costumes inspired by the show. Learn more about this underground LGBTQ ballroom subculture with performances and conversation.

Fashion & Fabulousness

Dieter Rams: Principled Design

Through April 14

Love the look and feel of your smartphone? Thank Dieter Rams. His quietly innovative versions of household products, stripped of any extraneous features, continue to influence industrial design today. Throughout a celebrated career at the German manufacturer Braun and the furniture company Vitsoe, Rams has created elegant and intuitive forms that remain timeless monuments to understatement and ease of use.

Creating a Legacy

Max Buten

For longtime supporter and Associate member Max Buten, the decision to donate his iconic 1917 I Want You for U.S. Army poster to the museum was a simple one. "The museum matters to me—I've been going there all my life," said Buten. "It's a proud moment to know that something associated with my name will be part of the Museum's collection, preserved, protected, and shared with future generations."

In recognition of his gift, Buten was welcomed into our Anne d'Harnoncourt Society, which honors donors of works of art.

To learn how you can leave your own legacy at the museum, contact Tara Prakash, Planned Giving Officer, at tara.prakash@philamuseum.org or 215-684-7351.
